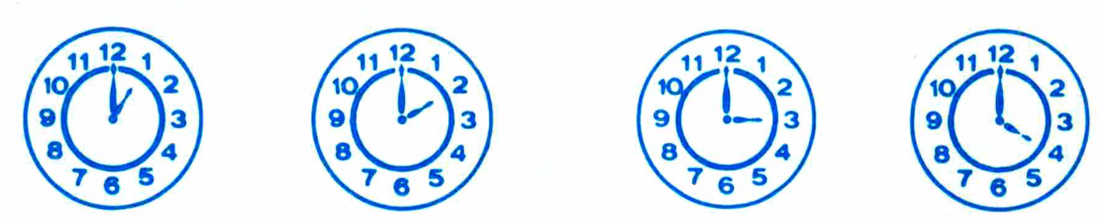
MAP OF THE UNITED STATES

PRINCIPAL STATIONS SERVED BY THE MILWAUKEE ROAD



In November, 1850, prominent citizens from the city of Milwaukee were taken for a 5-mile train ride on the first railroad in the state of Wisconsin, the Milwaukee & Mississippi Rail Road, between Milwaukee and Wauwatosa.

Through acquisitions and construction, that five miles has grown into the (NEW) MILWAUKEE ROAD, a major transcontinental carrier with an eastern terminus at Louisville, Kentucky and a western terminus at Portland, Oregon, a distance of some 2700 miles. System-wise, the Milwaukee Road operates through four time zones with a total of over 10,200 miles of line in 16 states.

In keeping with this growth, the Milwaukee Road continues to improve on its capabilities . . . through the acquisition of new locomotives and new and specialized equipment to augment its car supply . . . through the expansion of existing facilities for increased efficiency . . . and through the implementation of such services as Direct Customer Inquiry whereby carload tracing information can be obtained directly from our computers by means of Telex.

This map, another innovation of the Milwaukee Road, is indexed to include 1200 of the principal stations served by the railroad, cross-referenced to the main line or branch line on which located. It is hoped that this information will assist you—and enable you to ship farther on The Milwaukee Road, America's resourceful railroad!

Mileage shown as information only

For many years, the Milwaukee Road has been providing valuable assistance to manufacturing and distribution and service industries seeking sites throughout the Midwest and Pacific Northwest.

Our Real Estate, Economic and Resource Development Department maintains a mass of information on communities, sites and services, together with aerial and ground photographs of both developed and raw lands. A great deal of this information has been programmed into our computer, permitting an immediate print-out on available sites in response to inquiries identifying specific requirements.
